

Supporting Our Troops

In the midst of bright autumn sky,
raises the moon above the desert sand.
In a battlefield thousand miles away,
 called Iraq,
American daughters and sons,
long journey from home.

She is a disabled veteran's daughter.
He is a single-mother's son.
Leaving their children behind,
Nothing, they ask,
except seeing their little darling again, someday.

My friend, do you want to fly him a love?
In a little package goes with your love.
Telling him,
 how much you mind him;
you ask His Almighty,
shields him safe
until he comes home.
